五、阅读理解。

Smoking and Health

Americans smoke six thousand million cigarettes every year. It has been calculated that 51% of American men smoke while 34% of American women do so.

Since 1939, scientific studies have shown time and again that smoking does great harm to one’ s health and that it will shorten one’ s life.

Cigarette smoking is believed by most research workers in this field to be an important cause in the development of cancer of the lungs and the cancer of the throat and is believed to have much to do with some other kinds of cancers. Cigarette smokers suffer from the illness of the heart more often than those who don’ t smoke. But strange yet true, women are thought to be less affected, because when women smoke, they usually don’ t breathe in the smoke so deeply. Most of the doctors and researchers considered these experiments proved to be their satisfaction and say, “Give up smoking. If you don’ t smoke---don’ t start!”

Filters are required now to make smoking a bit safer, but they can only reduce, not get rid of its poison.

But there are still a number of doctors and research workers who are less sure of the effect of cigarette smoking on health. They believe that cancers of the lungs, the throat and so on may also be caused by atmosphere pollution, or chemical poison that is now being used by farmers in large quantities to destroy plant pests and small animals.
